

SAD DROWNING ON LEVY LAKE

Roy Emerson and a Visiting Relative Victims of Sad Fate.

BOTH BODIES WERE SECURED

After a Search of a Few Hours—Went Fishing Early Saturday Afternoon, and When They Did Not Return Relatives Became Alarmed.

From Monday's Twice-a-Week Sun.

Information has reached this city of a sad drowning at the Underhill place, Levy Lake, near Kirkwood, in which Roy Emerson, twenty years old, son of A. H. Emerson, and R. B. Dean of Anderson, S. C., seventy years of age, a relative of the Emersons, who was visiting the family at Kirkwood, lost their lives.

From the best information obtainable at this time Messrs. Emerson and Dean left the Emerson home early Saturday afternoon for a fishing trip. They drove to the Underhill place, where they secured a boat. As the shade of evening folded to its bosom the dying day, the gentlemen did not return. Supper at the Emerson home was postponed on account of their failure to arrive, and about 8 o'clock Mr. Emerson became uneasy at the continued absence of his son and relative, and began a search, which resulted in finding the boat only a few yards from shore, filled with water. In the boat were the poles used by the fishermen, the poles used by Mr. Dean being broken. This explained the story that both men had fallen victims to a watery grave.

Mr. Emerson was naturally deeply distressed at this discovery, but he secured assistance and began at once a search for the bodies, both of which were recovered. The body of Mr. Dean was dragged first, about midnight, while the body of young Mr. Emerson was discovered two hours later. They were taken to the home of Mr. Emerson, accompanied by the distracted father and a few sorrowing friends. The body of Mr. Dean was embalmed and shipped to his home in South Carolina. The burial of the young man took place at Micanopy cemetery yesterday.

The drowning occurred in about six feet of water, and only a few yards from shore. Judging from the position of the boat, which was not upturned, and the broken fishpole, it is supposed that in attempting to pull in a fish the pole gave way, throwing the occupants into the water; or it may have been that in his attempt to save Mr. Dean, young Emerson went overboard. Neither could swim, with the result that both were drowned. When discovered the bodies were on opposite sides of the boat.

Roy Emerson was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Emerson. He was a young man of noble character, popular among those who knew him, and his sad and sudden death has cast a gloom over the entire community. The sympathy of The Sun and other friends is extended to the distracted parents. Mr. Dean was also a magnificent gentleman, and during his visit at the Emerson home made many friends who greatly deplore his misfortune.

INHERITED SCROFULA

When a child I had a very severe attack of Diphtheria, which came near proving fatal. Upon recovery the glands of the neck were very much enlarged, and after the free use of iodine, the right one was reduced to its normal size, but the left one continued to grow—very slowly at first, until it was about the size of a goose egg, which began to press on the windpipe, causing difficult breathing, and became very painful. An incision was made and a large quantity of pus discharged. The gland was removed, or as much as could with safety be taken out. For ten years I wore a little piece of cloth about an inch long in my neck to keep the place open. During this time I had to have it cut open by the doctor every time I took cold or the opening clogged. In the Spring or early Summer of 1884 I was persuaded by my wife to use S. S. S., which I did, strictly in accordance with directions. I took twenty-six large bottles, and was entirely cured, for I have not suffered since that time.

Death of a Good Lady.

The Sun regrets to chronicle the death of Mrs. M. Cellon, which occurred at the home of her son, George Cellon, North Garden street, this city, Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Deceased was 68 years of age, and has resided in this county, principally in the vicinity of Hague, where she has reared a large and industrious family. She was a noble, Christian lady, and until rendered inactive by age was an earnest and active worker in the church. The remains were shipped to Antioch for burial.

The Sun, with other friends, extends sympathy to the family in this their hour of deep bereavement.

Grave Trouble Foreseen.

It needs but little foresight to tell that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead, unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women." Sold under guarantee by all druggists at 50c a bottle.

FAMOUS DOCUMENT'S HISTORY.

Story of the Declaration of Independence and Its Signers.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Colonel William H. Michael, chief clerk of the state department, by order of congress, has published a book giving an illustrated history of the declaration of independence, with the biographies and portraits of the signers and the secretary of the congress.

The advance copies of this work have been received at the department. The illustrations include not only photographs of the famous state paper in its present decayed condition, but also a number of photographs taken when the document was in a better state of preservation. The volume was prepared primarily as an aid to those in charge of the exhibit of the department of state at expositions in explaining that part of the exhibit relating to the declaration of independence. The series of portraits of the signers is complete and there is an interesting fac simile of the broadside copy of the declaration as signed by John Hancock, president of the congress, for and on behalf of the members of the congress, attested by Charles Thomson, secretary. Especially interesting is the correspondence relating to the declaration which is given. Because of the historic value of the work of Colonel Michael, congress ordered the book printed as a government publication.

Perfect Confidence.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symptoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. Basford of Poolesville, Md., in speaking of her experience in the use of that remedy says: "I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, for I have used it with perfect success. My child, Garland, is subject to severe attacks of croup, and it always gives him prompt relief." For sale by all druggists.
